PSY102: Introduction to Cognitive Psychology
Summer 2019, Instructor: Christina Bejjani
Midterm Feedback Survey

What do you like about the class?

I like how flexible it is to my learning. We are able to choose what articles we want to do assignments on.

I like how the instructor provides additional practice problems to allow ourselves to test our knowledge. I also like the idea of connecting what we are learning to various current journal articles.

Its very relaxing

Overall, I just find the material pretty interesting. I also like how we peer-review our work.

The discussion aspect

In what way could the instructor better support your learning?

I wish there were slightly more in depth instructions to the assignments, as it is sometimes a little confusing on what to do.

Sometimes it is difficult to see the connection between the content of the course and the journals that we read. Often, the articles are at a higher/more in depth level than the content of the course, so it can be difficult to figure out what the takeaways should be for a given article. A general "so what" for each article could be helpful

More detailed notes when we cover material in class

Please identify area(s) where you think the course could be improved.

I don't see any.

The course could be improved by having more dedicated days for content. Instead of covering content and discussing the journal articles, I think my learning would be facilitated by having one day dedicated to just learning the content, and then another day for going over the articles we have read, and connecting the material to the article.

Maybe less discussions and go over stuff more

I think the quizzes tend to be a little long. I think more time should be allotted to them or they should be shortened. Moreover, I think that reading articles again every night can get a little boring, especially when we have another assignment due the next day.

Less brain specific, more general applying cognitive readings

Have you applied what you've learned in this course to your daily life?

Yes [100%]

Any other suggestions for general improvement?

Nope.

Sometimes the slides move a little too fast, so it can be hard to write down the important points and focus on the discussion.
